Cookies

Cookies are small text files passed to your computer via your browser. Cookies are useful additions to web browsing as they assist the navigation between pages, store your preferences, and generally improving your experience of a website. Cookies make the interaction between you and the website faster and easier. They may be used to collect information to help identify you and prepare customised pages for you. Cookies may remain on your computer either for the duration of your web browsing or indefinitely. You can, however, modify most standard web browsers to refuse cookies and/or clear cookies.

The Foundation and its agents make use of Google Analytics to analyse website usage. Google Analytics uses cookies in this process.

Terms & Conditions (Privacy Statement)

The Foundation aims to make sure information contained in this website is correct. The Foundation will not, however, accept liability for any errors or omission, or the consequences thereof. No liability is accepted by the Foundation for any losses that may arise from an inability to access resources on this site. Although files contained in the website are virus checked these cannot guarantee that files are free from computer viruses.

The Foundation reserves the right to change the content of the website without prior notice. Any link to third party sites is for information purposes only and the Foundation does not endorse these sites.

The Foundation's website does not automatically capture or store personal data from visitors to the site, other than to log your IP address and session information. Session information includes the time and duration of your visit to the site, the files requested, and the browser used. This information will only be accessed by authorised persons of the Foundation and/or its agents. The information will be used to manage the website system and for statistical & audit purposes. As a condition of use of this website, all users must give permission for the Foundation to use its access logs to attempt to track users who are reasonably suspected of gaining or attempting to gain unauthorised access.

On some parts of the website (e.g. "Contact Us"), you may be asked to provide some limited personal information. The Foundation and/or its agents may store this information manually or electronically. By supplying this information you are consenting to the Foundation holding and using it for the purposes for which it was provided.
